QUESTIONS OF THE WEEK

(Editor's note: Here are the questions asked most frequently by Virginia farmers during the past week, as reported by county agents. Answers are supplied by staff members of the VPI Agricultural Extension Service and/or Experiment Station).

Q. What can I seed on land for this summer where alfalfa seeding has been delayed until fall because of bad weather?

A. Sudan grass or pearl millet will furnish summer grazing; or in most parts of the state early silage corn can be seeded. Whatever the crop, it should be harvested in time for alfalfa seeding within the recommended dates.

Q. Should I fertilize my shrubbery?

A. In many parts of the state the shrubbery is in a weakened condition because of winter injury and fertilizer will help. Use a regular commercial fertilizer around the base of the shrubs. It can be applied at the same time as lawn fertilizer.

Q. How much and what analysis of fertilizer should I use on peanuts?

A. It will depend on many factors. The first thing you should do is to have a soil test run. Fertiliz according to results. Generally, recommendations are for 400 to 600 pounds per acre of 0-10-20.

Q. When and how often should tobacco plants be treated to control bluemold? What materials are recommended?

A. Treat twice each week and after heavy rains with fenbam or zineb. Start treatments when the plants are about the size of a dime.

Q. When can I spray to kill wild onions in my wheat?

A. When the wheat is fully tillered (stooled), but before it starts to joint. Use 2,4-D ester at the rate of 3/4 pound per acre. Spray when the temperature is about 60° for best results.

Q. Can a cow that will calve shortly be tested safely for brucellosis?

A. Yes.

Q. What can I plant now to provide a more complete year-round forage program for my livestock?

A. In northern Piedmont and in Western Virginia, early April seedings can be made of alfalfa or of ladino clover and orchard grass. Throughout the state in May, seed sudan grass and millet to increase the summer feed supply.

Q. Is it too late to topdress small grains? Is it time to spray small grains to control wild vetch and garlic?

A. Small grains should have been topdressed in February or March. To control wild vetch and garlic, spray after the plants have tillered but before they begin to point. It is about time now.

Q. Is it too late to seed oats?

A. Yes, it is too late except in the area west of the Blue Ridge where they can be seeded up until April 10.

Appomattox is a growing town.
